Dear Maria,

I hesitate to write to you because I have heard rumours of your being ill again. I hope that if you have been ill, you ~~will get~~^{are} well again. You will be one of our special intentions at Thursday's Mass. (Unfortunately, we have had to change from Friday, as the new chaplain isn't free on that day). If - but only if - you are well and capable of doing so, we expect your second article (will it be your last?) about May 25th, earlier if at all possible, because it is difficult to translate your style. This is a compliment: the most difficult person in PR is Père Kaelin, with you a close second! We should also like a photo of you, a nice one. With love and best wishes, Bridaine.

Bridaine.

The background of the image is an old, textured envelope. At the top, there are faint, mirrored stamps, likely from a postage meter, with some legible text including "FIBROIDE" and "DE FIBROIDE". A large, solid black rectangle is superimposed over the lower two-thirds of the envelope, serving as a background for the text.
