Paris, 16th August, 1979

Honourable Prime Minister,

I learned rather late that you had left Paris to take up your new office of Prime Minister of your great country. Allow me though belatedly to offer my humble congratulations. I am particularly proud that a Permanent Delegate at Unesco has been entrusted with such great responsibility and it is a general feeling among us at Unesco that in you, Portugal will find able leadership and great inspiration.

Accept, Honourable Prime Minister, the assurance of my highest consideration.
