Dear Dr. Benjamin Brown,

Your letter from Nov 21st was a great encouragement to me in my efforts to dig into my experience and to share it with others at the deepest level. Thank you then for your very kind invitation as well for your concrete suggestions about the way to make the status of a fellowship a practical possibility.

I didn't write to you earlier because I needed to clarify a few things concerning my plans for this year. Meanwhile, some friends in Boston who had invited me last year to give a series of lectures in a few Universities have made their plans concrete for this year. I am intending to be in Boston some time during the month of April. By then I would have made all the possible contacts from this side of the Ocean in relation to possible funds for a fellowship. A conversation with you will be, at that time, most helpful to me so as to the feasibility of my application for a fellowship. As soon as my dates are definite I will let you know.

Hoping to meet you soon,
your sincerely

P.S. Curriculum, plan of research and names of referees would be a step following discussion about practical means.
