

The concept of, "social quality" gives to rights a dynamic dimension, spelling clearly that participation and empowerment are fundamental ingredients of a political entity.

Such is the understanding of the CdS. So much so that the members of the Committee are going to present to the Parliament + to the Commission ^{a plan for} the implementation of what we called in our report the II phase of consultation. ~~Facing the timid steps of the IGC (unless an earthquake happens in the next days)~~ At this moment, we totally share the position of the A'dam declaration. ~~Whatever may~~ ^{blurred} However ~~strong~~ may be the vision of those entrusted with the revision of the Maastricht Treaty and however dangerous may be the geological blowlines of changes in the ^{most} European institutions particularly the ~~Committee~~ we think that it is possible to launch in each country

a wide consultation through NGOs, research institutes + networks, and our nationally elected representatives.
~~to~~ The initiative should come from the joint efforts of the EP and the EC.

We need to know what is already there in directives, in decisions of the Council, in resol. of EP. And then ask ourselves:
what is missing?

To give the maxim ~~input~~ ^{and voice to} what exist, to the committees, ~~to~~
And then to find a method to ask our citizens:

about their civic + social rights?
all? some? others?

to integrate everything in the beginning of a Bill of Rights.

The concern for "social quality" and the spelling out of social rights is ^{both} part of the improve of well-being of E.
citizen ~~and~~ and ~~an~~ indispensable condition to build a truly political EU.
