• From where is education coming?

Several streams down the slopes of a life's mountain, become the river of one's own personality.

- the school as an institution where there is the process of learning, more concerned with contents: everyone goes to school but what are the children + young people learning? The school gives some tools, some information, not all the information

- the mass-media in which I include the music in the restaurant as well as the TV program, the press, the radio, all the publicity around you (my experience of being very aware of the sign which are there because I cannot read them)

- the cultural events that are landmarks in one's own life: the friends we met once, the beauty of a landscape, God uttering a word in the silence of our hearts

- the family, not only in teaching a formal style of life but helping to decipher the elementary codes of existence,

For me, all that must lead to a greater discernment, to a inner intelligence of things,

• Person + nature / ecological system

When we have been for centuries struggling for survival, the person fades in the background. Likewise, when we ~~measure~~<sup>value</sup> life only in terms of statistics + plans, the person doesn't count.

Persons are sociologically invisible! It is as if they wouldn't exist. They are not seen. They are not counted.

Persons emerge from the anonymous crowd when they radiate beauty, inspire emotions, express sensitivity. Otherwise, they could be easily replaced by computers.

You, better than any other country, can show to the world that human existence has more to it than putting 2+2 together.

Through the devastating ideology which dominates the Northern Hemisphere + soon the South as well, we are discovering the human person cannot exist in separation from its milieu. ~~to~~ The dresses we put on ourselves, the house we live in, the atmosphere we breathe, all that is an extension of the self. Person + nature blend into one.

Beauty / emotions / sensitivity / no imitating man

- Integration

(- all dimensions in space)
(- " " " in time)

Many people think in a scattered way, going in all directions, without orientation from inside. We need to pool everything together, to make unity out of the fragmented parts.

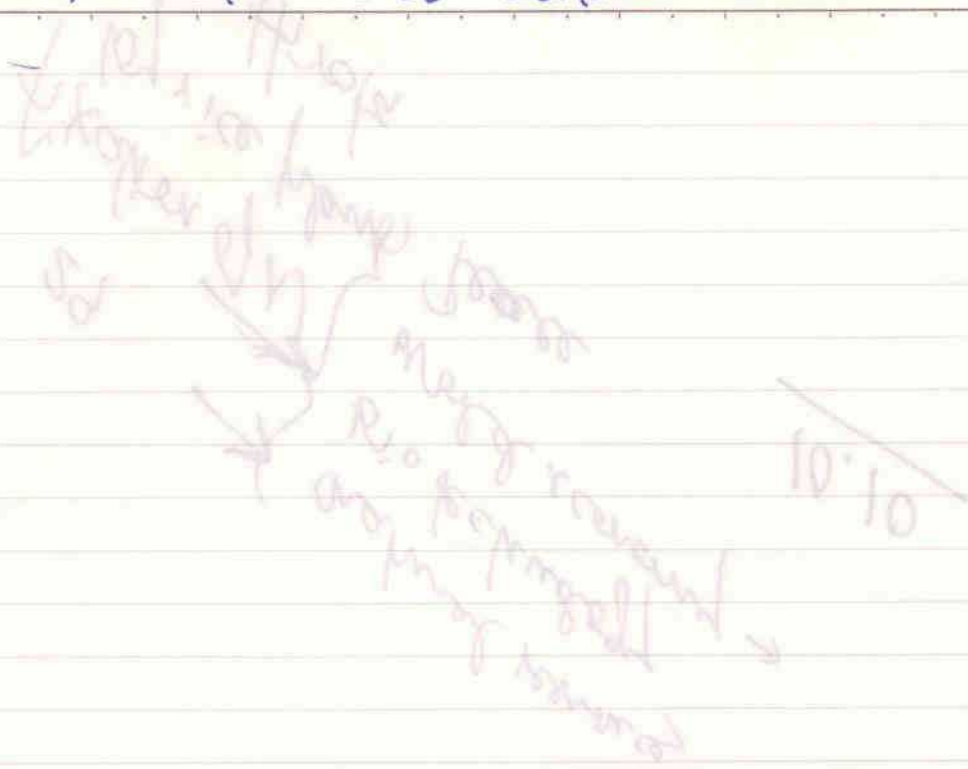

This is why integration is such a fundamental process in life! By integration we mean being the same throughout events + moments.

As in my own group this year: "Always the same. Never the same."

The cry for identity is also a cry for eternity. To exist is to long for a destiny greater than our time on earth.

• Women can build a new world
