Dear Miss Pintasilgo,

You will by now have heard from Miss Clout and will know how pleased I am with your excellent and most interesting essay.

As to the problems of translation, I think we will probably produce the best results if we work on it together. Miss Clout would not claim to be a professional translator, but she is an ex-schoolmistress with a very good English style as well as being a very intelligent woman with a good grasp of theological questions. We went over the draft which I think she has now sent to you together. Once we have your comments on this, we should be able to produce a good English version for the printer.

With very many thanks.

Yours sincerely,

Miss Maria de Lourdes Pintasilgo,
Av. dias da Silva 173 - 2,
Coimbra,
Portugal.
